Water Experts to Assess the Water Supply at January Meeting

State and federal water managers and hydrologists, as well as private-sector experts, will provide updates on snowpack and the water supply outlook for the coming year at the next Idaho Water Supply Committee meeting on Friday, February 12.

The public meeting at the Idaho Department of Water Resources' headquarters – in the Idaho Water Center in downtown Boise – will include discussions on climate, flooding, reservoir operation, river flows and snowpack.

Committee members will review the latest data and assess the outlook for water supplies for the upcoming season, along with the possibility of flooding.

When: Friday, February 12, 2016 Meeting begins at 10:00 a.m.

Where: Idaho Water Center, 322 E. Front Street, Boise, ID 83720
6th floor, conference rooms 602 C and D

Please contact Liz Cresto at 287-4833 or liz.cresto@idwr.idaho.gov for remote internet access to this meeting.

Parking is located in the Idaho Water Center parking garage. Note: there is a parking fee to park in the garage; however the first hour of parking is free.
